What you can expect:

Today you are greeted at your hotel and driven to Marsala. This region is world renowned for its fine grapes and for Marsala wine. Visit a Winery to taste the Marsala wines and discover the origin of this wine fortified similar to Port, Madeira and Sherry.

Then we travel along the Salt Way Road and through the Nature Reserve of the Stagnone (that literally means large pool). Since this large lagoon has shallow and very salty water, it is the ideal place for saltworks. While travelling you will be fascinated by this unusual landscape: panels of mirror-like water, held by thin strips of earth and white windmills. Beyond the saltworks stand out some islands - including Mithia, once joined to the mainland by a paved road - while Isola Longa (Long Island) encloses the lagoon.

The sea salt, in the tradition of this part of Sicily, is obtained by the evaporation of the sea water through a simple but functional method of "handmade fractional distillation", that allows to highlight the positive qualities and at the same time eliminate unwanted compounds. In Summer now as then in some areas between Trapani and Marsala it is possible to admire piles of salt just harvested.

Moving northward we will get to an Olive Oil Producer (Farmhouse/Winery). That's indeed one of the most noted areas in Sicily for extra-virgin olive oil production. Taste this oil combined with local bread and savour a mix of local products such as cheese, salumi and olives.

Later this afternoon we will reach Segesta, to visit the impressive Doric temple dated back to the 5th century BC. This ancient Greek temple can make a valid claim to being the best preserved in the world, though never completed as the roof was never added.
